Parent Activity Guide: Helping your child identify Trusted Adults at School

To help parents recognize and use confidential support resources, Broward County Public Schools has created this Parent Activity Guide. The guide includes information about how to help your child identify trusted adults at school.

 1. Ask open-ended questions about your child's school experience. Examples of questions you can ask: • How do you like school? • How do you like your teacher? • How do you like your friends?	 Have your child think about what people at school they trust. Write names of people who are trusted by your child. Write down their names, how they help, and when they help.	 Role play talking for help. Have your child pretend to be a student who needs help. Ask your child to act out how they would ask for help.
 Remember that your child may not be able to identify a trusted adult at school. It is important to help your child identify trusted adults at home.	Check-in Ask, "Do you have a trusted adult at school? How can you go to them?"
